In this filmstrip, snowmen illustrate the maxims of winter safety. Colorfully presented, so as to hold a youngster's attention, the snowmen are the victims of the major dangers of careless participation in winter activities. The children learn how to play safely and to enjoy their winter games.

CHILDREN OF MANY LANDS

Two color slide sets
012100/012200

A get-acquainted visit with the children of many lands, these two series of 10 slides each offer a colorful study of children from 17 nations. For younger classes, the pictures show children similar to themselves, but in strange and exciting surroundings. A bond is established with the many children at home, at work and play, and at school. For older classes the slides are a good incentive for discussion. Commentary is left to the teacher.

NASKAPI INDIANS

The subject of these filmstrips is of exceptional interest. They are a record of Indian life and handicrafts surviving on the fringe of 20th century western civilization.
